IAC T Names Crowe Horwath LLP an IAC T Strategic Partner

The Indiana Association of Cities and Towns (IAC T) recently named Crowe Horwath LLP (Crowe) a Strategic Partner. Crowe is the ninth largest public accounting and consulting firm in the U.S.

“Crowe’s expertise in both performance government and assurance services will be a huge asset to our membership. Each year city and town leaders are being asked to provide more and more services with increasingly shrinking revenues,” said IAC T Executive Director and CEO Matt Greller. “Crowe’s focus on innovation and desire to help the public sector be more strategic and streamlined in their processes makes them a good fit at just the right time,” said Greller.

As a Strategic Partner, Crowe will assist IAC T with continuing education workshops and provide IAC T advice by identifying issues and potential solutions that will result in more efficient and effective municipal governance. Crowe joins the ranks of four other IAC T Strategic Partners. Bingham Greenebaum Doll LLP, EMH&T, Ice Miller LLP and Umbaugh have been serving IAC T in this capacity for many years. Each has given an immeasurable amount of time and professional expertise to IAC T’s municipal members.

“Crowe has a long history serving Indiana’s network of dedicated city and town leaders,” said Bob Lazard, managing partner of Crowe Government Services. “Through this new relationship with IAC T we are excited to share the expertise we’ve developed in the areas of fiscal benchmarking, integration of online services or e-government and best practices in complex grant administration, just to name a few.”
